You will recreate the following table that displays the marks of a class of students.

This midterm assignment is worth 5% of your final grade.

Requirements

HTML

The HTML page you submit should include the following specifications:

- A link to the external stylesheet named `midterm_style.css`
- A table that contains:
 - A caption with the words "Student Marks"
 - A row of table headings for each column
 - Rows of data containing the marks for each student
 - A column spanning four rows that indicates that the Arts class was cancelled
 - A table data spanning two columns indicating that Joshua did not finish Math and Science classes

CSS

Your CSS styles should be contained in an external stylesheet named `midterm_style.css` that meets the following specifications:

Caption

- Provide a black, solid border of 1px width to the caption of the table
- Set the caption of the table to have a background-color of #1491F0
- Set the caption to transform the text within to uppercase
- Set the text within the caption to be white (#FFFFFF)

Table

- Configure a collapsed border between the table and table contents. Remember that you must set a border on the table and table contents, then collapse the border.
- Provide a 10px padding for the table data (use the style `padding:10px` on the elements that relate to table contents, including table headers)
- Set the first row of the table to have the background-color of #7EC7FF
- Set every other odd row to have the background-color of #E3F3FF

Make sure that the first row is displayed with a different background color than the other rows of the table when you check your work.

Hint – Pay attention to how the browser applies your styles.

Submission

Validate your .HTML and .CSS document and check your work before you submit. When you are ready to submit, upload `midterm.html` and `midterm_style.css` in a ZIP file to eCentennial under the assignment named “Midterm Assignment”.

eCentennial will delete your `<head>` element if it is not submitted in a ZIP file, unfortunately.
